Part 14 Zashiki Warashi

This is its third appearance, but there hasn't been a chance to introduce it properly in the encyclopedia. Zashiki Warashi is known as a youkai in human child form that brings luck to human and happiness to families. Its age and gender can differ from region to region, but they seem to be act in groups. There are cases where they show up in groups of 2 or 3. It loves to pull pranks and scare people by running around at night and making sounds when there are people home alone. But it also protects families by e.g. alarming them when fire happens. It doesn't place curses like beastial spirits but it will leave the family it's protecting on its whim. As the youkai leaves the family, the family will quickly fall into misfortune. Due to this fact, Zashiki Warashi was also considered as a bad youkai. Although, I think that the bad is the family that was too depending on the luck Zashiki Warashi brought them. Zashiki Warashi itself is an innocent child youkai that bears no evil intent.

By the way, long ago there was a custom called "infanticide" which is to kill infants because the parents were to poor to feed them. It was still performed until over a dozen years ago. Zashiki Warashi is said to be formed from the spirits of those infants. Perhaps, that's why it likes happiness.

Also, this is a story I heard from a friend that owns a toy store. He said that his toy storage is often visited by children ghosts. These spirits might become a Zashiki Warashi in the future.
